Presentation

Following the I INTERNATIONAL MEETING OF REFLECTION ON COMMUNITY ARTISTIC PRACTICES (EIRPAC), carried out in September of 2015 in Porto, and meeting the needs for further development expressed during those 2 days, we have challenged ourselves to carry out the II INTERNATIONAL MEETING OF REFLECTION ON COMMUNITY ARTISTIC PRACTICES with the specific theme of Collaborative/ Participatory Artistic Practices and Communities.

This II Meeting will be held in Porto on the 19th, 20th and 21th September 2017, integrated into "MEXE_IV International Arts and Community Meeting", in a co-organization between Instituto de Estudos de Literatura e Tradição da Faculdade de Ciências Sociais e Humanas da Universidade Nova de Lisboa (IELT/FCSH UN), Centro de História da Arte e Investigação Artística da Universidade de Évora (CHAIA/UE), Escola Superior de Música e Artes do Espetáculo do Instituto Politécnico do Porto (ESMAE/IPP), Escola Superior de Teatro e Cinema do Instituto Politécnico de Lisboa (ESTC/IPL), Centro de Investigação em Artes e Comunicação da Universidade do Algarve (CIAC/UA), Faculdade de Psicologia e Ciências da Educação da Universidade do Porto (FPCEP/UP) and PELE.

This meeting of reflection becomes relevant due to the importance these practices have been acquiring amongst the contemporary artistic creations, being these intrinsic to the sociocultural experiences and manifestations of the communities. The development of long-term collaborative/participatory processes between artists and communities, the mobilization of experiences, memories, feelings/senses of the daily life on private territories, as well as the emergence of desires/hopes mediated by the participatory dimension and involved of all are the founding aspects of these approaches. In this regard, one of the focuses of the II EIRPAC is over the theoretical and methodological issues raised along the development of creative processes, upon which we must reflect. Where affection and ethics converge and politics and aesthetics reinvent themselves.

EIRPAC intends to reflect upon the diversity of the community artistic practices and such as its organization should contemplate the more systematic spaces for academic reflection, as well as the spaces for sharing perspectives and good practices in a more informal way and involving local communities.

Objectives

- . To investigate the community artistic practices within the national and international context, identifying the social role they play, the aesthetic shapes used and the creation methodologies developed;
- . To promote the exchange and partnerships between national and international community artistic projects and researchers, strengthening a networking;
- . To review the community artistic creation projects, from which results a significant contribute to the participatory and collaborative construction;
- . To reflect upon the processes of personal, cultural and social transformations through the processes of community artistic creation;
- . To stimulate the academic research and the creation of critical thinking around the research into/with/about community projects with artistic nature;
- . To analyse questions related to ethical, aesthetical and political posture on the artistic intervention towards the communities;
- . To stimulate the systemization and production of knowledge on this specific area.

Thematic axes

- a) Contemporary aesthetic and popular cultures: intersections
